FAQS

Q: How often should I go to the dentist?

The basic rule of thumb says you should visit the dentist every six months. Studies have shown that people without any problems are ok to go once a year while those with dental issues should get checked out every 3 or 4 months.

Keep your teeth healthy and strong. Book now to get started on a path towards a bright future! 😊

ODONTECTOMY SURGERY

A procedure wherein dentist will remove the tooth by separating and opening the gums, sometimes there is the necessity to remove bone around the tooth.

This is especially common to third molar teeth due to the fact that most of the third molars are impacted (embedded under the jaw bone).
